

Every read is aligned to the target, its paralogue and any contaminant at once, and goes to whichever it matches best: reads below the diagonal are closer to the target. A paralogue can also be analysed as a target of its own.